

A Song of the Sea.

Words by J. HUIE.

Music by WALTER H. SANGSTER.

VOICE.

PIANO. Agitato.

1. The wind blows o - ver the
2. The sea is shin - ing, the curl - ing sea, The white waves break on the shore, It's oh for the voice that is wind is low, The white waves moan on the shore, I list - en and hope and sweet to me, And the step coming in at the door. The wind is ris - ing, the fear to know, And I dread to look be - fore. It's oh for a form that I sea is dark, The white waves dash on the shore; At the long - lived thun - der I fain would see, The white waves foam on the shore; It's oh for a heart that is trem-ble and hark, And it's oh for a step at the door! Oh, night..... of dear to me, And what if it beats no more? Oh, night..... of watch - ing and prayer and cry! The white waves rage on the shore, The weep - ing, oh, morn of song, The white waves sing on the shore, The white waves rage on the shore. Oh, when will the night and the storm go by? Will the white waves sing on the shore; For I see a form that is brave and strong, And I morn - - ing break, Will the morn-ing break no more? Will the morn - - ing hear a step, And I hear a step at the door, I hear..... a ad lib.

Seas

break no more?
 step at the door.

rall.